

Nearly 200 volunteers with the Little Elves Foundation turned up at Collège Jean de Brébeuf earlier this month to wrap more than 3,000 gifts destined for people who are affected by HIV/AIDS and who are alone or isolated. The presents will be distributed Christmas Eve to men, women and children affiliated with 54 hospices and community organizations across Canada. The Little Elves Foundation, a non-profit organization, was established by Montrealer Sylvain Duhamel, whose brother Alain died of AIDS. To learn more, visit littleelves.org.
